S. N. CASTLE FIRE STARTS RUMORS

INSURANCE MEN ORDER INSPECTION

Various Agents Make Probes Of Blaze In Old Vessel

Insurance men, waterfront authorities, the United States marine hospital service and a hundred spectators of the fire in the barkentine S. N. Castle this morning are stirred up by widely varying reports as to the origin of the fire.

While the charge is made by those aboard the vessel that the fire started from fumigation pots put in yesterday by the U. S. quarantine service, reports have been flying around all morning that there is "something doing."

Expert examination by individuals and a board of survey are passing on the questions. The copra cargo, belonging to Father Rouger of Fanning Island, is insured with the Switzerland Marine Insurance Company, and Alexander & Baldwin, for the San Francisco agents of the company, this morning called in A. R. Gurrey, secretary of the board of fire underwriters, for an expert examination.

Arthur Berg of the Bishop Insurance Agency sent Captain Macaulay down for another probe. The Bishop agency represents the San Francisco Board of Marine Underwriters, the board representing the companies in which the vessel was insured while at San Francisco.

After an examination, Captain Macaulay in a private conversation is reported on unimpeachable authority to have said that the copra cargo appeared to have been damaged by previous exposure to sea-water, and that "if a blaze had started, they might not be backward about helping it along."

Dr. Trotter, chief quarantine officer, says that the fumigation pots were out early this morning and that the vessel was "soiled" at 7 o'clock, half an hour before the fire was reported.

The theory of spontaneous combustion is also held. It is said that the sulphur smoke in the fumigation would drive the oxygen from the air, and that after the fumigation was over and the sulphur smoke cleared away, the rush of oxygen, over the greasy, oily copra cargo, would create a condition favorable to spontaneous combustion.

The rumors that the fire in the vessel was more than an accident, in view of the alleged badly damaged cargo already known, and the fact that the vessel came in here old and battered, are scouted by the friends of Captain von Dahlsen.

Fire that raged in the hold of the American barkentine S. N. Castle this morning caused loss or damage to the amount of several hundred dollars, besides preventing the departure of the sailing vessel for the mainland.

Officers connected with the Federal customs staff observed a column of black smoke and flame issuing from the after hatch of the barkentine shortly before half-past seven this morning.

The fire department's two brand-new motor-driven chemical engines and two steam fire engines hastened to the scene of fire, at the lower end of Fort street, their rapid passage through the center and business section of the city attracting a large crowd of followers.

Vessel Badly Scorched.

An examination made of the hold

M'DUFFIE TAKES MAN WHO FLEES TO THE ORIENT

Chief of Detectives McDuffie this morning boarded the incoming Pacific Mail liner Persia and arrested a Japanese, Kozui Tansuk, whose true name, according to the latest cable to McDuffie, is Ichuchi.

The Japanese is wanted at Pasco, Wash., for grand larceny. Sheriff Hays of Pasco, who learned of the departure of the Japanese in the Persia, enabled to Chief McDuffie here to arrest the man on the arrival of the Pacific Mail liner, and this morning the chief boarded the steamer and snatched away the Nipponese from the line where the passengers awaited the inspection by the local quarantine officials.

Chief McDuffie when seen this morning said that he does not know the particular charges awaiting the Japanese in Pasco. He stated, however, that the Nipponese is wanted there to answer the charge of grand larceny.

NO MANEUVERS TODAY; BELL SURPRISES ALL

[Staff Correspondence]
SCHOFIELD BARRACKS, May 11.—Maintaining his reputation for springing surprises, Colonel Bell, inspector general of the Western Division, sprung one on the Army maneuver camps today by calling for field inspection instead of maneuvers.

All night last night the rival "armies" expected the call for a night attack, and many a wakeful soldier did not close his eyes until after 12 o'clock. The tip was out that the sudden cessation of maneuvers yesterday meant the night sortie, but not so.

Then this morning Colonel Bell announced inspection in the field. First the cavalry, the entire Fifth with the exception of one troop which had been left at Schofield, then the First Field Artillery, then the Second Infantry and finally the sanitary troops.

Colonel Bell went through the inspection with a fine-toothed comb. He made a minute personal inspection trip down the ranks and not a thing escaped his expert eye.

While no report of course will be made public now, it may be said that the army of Oahu is making a very good showing and that Colonel Bell was not displeased this morning. As he went through the inspection, he had very few criticisms to make.

Indeed, from a spectator's standpoint, the troops are acquitting themselves well, both on maneuvers and in camp. They are handled splendidly, too.

Next Week Busy.
Next week will come a series of tests really harder than those just gone through, the landing of the various arms as individual elements.

Monday and Tuesday will be devoted to the cavalry, Wednesday and Thursday to the field artillery, and Friday and Saturday to the infantry.

DUKE SMASHED DANIELS' RECORD FOR 80 YARDS IN PHILLY RACE

Duke Kahanamoku's wonderful performance do not cease as he lengthens his stay on the mainland.

By today's mail Lew Henderson received a clipping (titled of one of Duke's latest feats, from James T. Sterrett, secretary of the Philadelphia Swimming Club. This is from the Philadelphia Ledger of April 27. The most interesting part of it is at the last, where Duke smashed a world's record for eighty yards and appeared to do it as easily "as rolling off a log."

The Ledger's story follows:
A swimming entertainment that excited anything of the kind ever before given in this part of the world, because of the classy character of the performers and the work they did, took place on Thursday night in the pool of the Philadelphia Turngemeinde. The Philadelphia Swimming Club, through the courtesy of the Turners, was allowed the use of the pool for an entertainment for members and lady friends of its organization.

One of the attractions was the work of Duke Kahanamoku of Honolulu, the

Will Fight Cable For Pacific Business

"The Western Union company has entered into a traffic agreement with the Marconi company whereby the Western Union offices receive and deliver Marconigrams to and from Europe. The agreement provides for the extension of the Marconi system from the Pacific Coast of the United States to Hawaii, China, Japan and the Philippines, thus giving the Western Union company a wireless transpacific service."

This statement, given out formally by the officers of the Western Union Telegraph Company, is the opening gun in what is expected to be an epoch-making fight for control of the telegraph business of the Pacific.

Behind the story of the Marconi company's determination to establish powerful wireless plants on the Pacific, told by J. A. Balch, vice president of the Mutual Telephone Company, on his return from the mainland by the Lurline last Wednesday, there is a still bigger story. It is the story of the Western Union's coup by which it gains a transpacific wireless service, and enters the Pacific to wrest the business from the Commercial Pacific Cable Company.

Honolulu is the most important link in the chain the Western Union is forging to girdle the earth, and Honolulu is going to get the benefits of the sudden increase in facilities for communication. It is freely predicted that rates will be cut at least in half, and that when the wireless service is fully established, they will go below that.

The Western Union's millions and the Western Union's well-known ability to carry a fight through to the finish have now been put behind the wireless company, and there will be plenty of funds to finance the fight. Indeed, so well was this recognized, and so commanding a position did it give the Marconi Wireless, that from the moment when it was known that negotiations were under way for the Western Union's agreement, Marconi stock began to jump.

The shares of the Marconi company, lately 25 per cent but just recently changed to 5 per cent, have been selling very high. Then the old stock went to 345 a share and the new stock sold at 16 a share.

The company has never paid any dividends and has had a surplus in only one year of its history, which was last year.
